

Dod-Den Trail - 8.0 miles

The trail leaves Dodworth and descends to Silkstone Beck whilst taking in long distance views of West Yorkshire towards Emley Moor mast. It then follows the old waggonway before heading towards the picturesque village of Cawthorne and small farming hamlets. It keeps to the backwaters of the village before climbing through Deffer Wood and then dropping into the Dearne Valley and onwards towards Denby Dale.

Points of Interest along the way

Dodworth

This was once a very busy place for coal mining. Most of the industrial site you pass was once the site of Barnsley Main colliery. In its heyday one would have passed scores of miners walking back to their homes, most with coal lined faces. Today it's all gone.

Silkstone Waggonway

This is where the route of the old horse drawn waggonway, one can still see the foundations of the horse drawn railway. There are also old mine buildings along its way.

Cawthorne Village

This is a very pretty village with lots of amenities, it even has its own museum.

Cannon Hall

There is a lot to see at Cannon Hall and perhaps more than could be fitted in in one day. There is the park, the hall along with its museum, the farm and the farm shop and restaurant.

Deffer Woods

This is a large woodland which is privately owned but has trails which run through it. It is a nice place to wander round but it can be a bit of a maze so if you wander off be careful.

Amenities

Cawthorne is the main place to head for if you want or need amenities. There is the Spencers Arms and other places in the village.

The Route

The route is all on public footpaths and passes through lots of quiet footpaths and places of interest. Cawthorne is a good spot to have a break although there are lots of places along the way to have a picnic. There are lots of stiles and a steep descent from Dodworth to Cawthorne basin. The ground conditions are very weather dependent but generally good with some short muddy sections. It is a good day's walk and one should allow 3.5 to 4 hours to complete the walking. Total ascent and descent of 832ft and 673ft.
